

WILLIAM A. JONES OF VIRGINIA

BY SAVOYARD.

This man has set himself a task for himself. It is his purpose to smite the serpent and slay the Martin machine in Virginia, which is all that Quakerism was in Pennsylvania, or Gormanism in Maryland, or more, for report saith that it mobilized in one camp the nation and the temperance lodge, that is, those who drink in one and those who attend the other. It is notorious that at the last primary both classes have named supported the machine candidate and he was triumphant.

Like all similar machines, the Martin combination is a prehistoric that parades out among its servants the spoils of office. Nobody can get a nomination for a state office without consent, and it rules Virginia with an iron rod in the name and by the authority of the democratic party, which it has by the throat. This machine held a primary election in the Norfolk congressional district in 1901, at which all the ward leaders of New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh would stand against. That "election" was the issue in Virginia and the issue it will remain until the machine is destroyed.

It is everywhere conceded that Virginia is the most illustrious of the American commonwealths. She contributed to civil liberty the tongue of Henry, the pen of Jefferson, and the sword of Washington. Nay, she illumined the Christian civilization and exalted the human race with the lofty character of Robert E. Lee. The Constitution fell from the plastic hands of her Madison and her Mason, and to the republic she gave Kentucky and the opulent empire called the "Middle West." Leader of the Rebellion of '61, she was the citadel of the Rebellion of '91, and in her generous bosom abode more valor than reposes in the soil of all the rest of our hemisphere besides. When the South was at bay against what was practically the world in arms and the Old Dominion was bleeding at every pore, the valiant fore her tortured virgins and the van dale carved from her side what is now West Virginia and made it an annex of Pennsylvania.

And now after so glorious a past seemingly Virginia is powerless in the grasp of as conscienceless and as remorseless a set of political harpies as ever operated a machine in contempt of justice and in defiance of people. What will the harvest be? Time will tell.

Who is the champion that has entered the lists against the Martin machine? It is William A. Jones. Born near where repose the bones of "the world's only Washington," a citizen of that community every day of his life, educated at the institution founded by Thomas Jefferson, elected eleven times to congress by that democratic constituency, William A. Jones is a Virginian of Virginians. It would be impossible for the machine to seduce this man, and they who know him realize that it is unthinkable that he should lead himself to the corruption of the least or the humblest citizen. Preferring the most exalted, honors the most radiant, this man would scorn and put behind him unless they were the free offerings of a free people and not the largesse apportioned to him by a boss. And he is remembered the American people are face to face with their bosses, everywhere, including old Virginia. God bless her!

William A. Jones was born in Richmond county in 1849, and his dwelling is on the same site of the house in which he was born. He was one of the boys of the Virginia Military Institute who studied their arms in the capitol grounds at Richmond at the surrender of 1865. Then he attended the Coleman school at Fredericksburg so famous as the preparatory academy for students of the University of Virginia. Later he entered that university, in both the academic and law departments, and from the latter he was graduated.

He opened an office at Warsaw and was in the active practice of his profession when chosen member of congress from the First district in 1896, and he has been ten times re-elected, a record equaled by no other Virginian save John Randolph of Roanoke and Thomas Newton of Norfolk. He is the dean of the democratic side and no man in public life has made a finer character.

Mr. Jones won his spurs the first session in which he sat, it was to the debate of the Sibley claim. Before the war Sibley, a Southerner and a graduate of West Point, invented an army tent, and the government entered into a contract with him for its use. He assigned one-half the contract to a Northern man who collected what was due him on it. Sibley went with his people in the war and after the surrender he was pardoned and later he died.

His heirs presented a claim for the amount due him and the government pleaded the statute of limitations; at least that was the effect of it, but bloody shivers like Barrows and that gang pleaded treason in bar. While Jones was speaking Tom Reed interrupted to ask if the fact that the government was making money enough to hang Sibley for his treason should not be a satisfaction and discharge of the account, to which Jones retorted that such suggestion would come with better grace from some one who faced Sibley on the field of battle.

There was a heap of phariseism in the debate of the Sibley claim and perhaps it was the last forensic battle in congress in which the G. O. P. unfurled the bloody shirt. There was a deal of cant and dishonesty in every argument adduced. The excuse for the repudiation was that those to whom the debt was due were children of a pardoned rebel. If that idea prevailed—that nobody should pay a debt if he did not approve the conduct or the descent of the creditor—it would be the easiest matter in the world for all of us to turn rascals and retain our respectability.

Jones' retort on Reed was one of the very few times that the shaft of an adversary pierced the armor of the giant from Maine. He resented it like a plume and not like the great man he certainly was, and when he became speaker of the Fifty-fourth congress he removed Jones from the committee of rivers and harbors and assigned him to minor and insignificant places in the organization in which Virginia had little or no interest, such as Indian affairs and public lands. It was designed as a punishment of an enemy to whom he did not speak and over whom he had no power. It was unworthy of Tom Reed.

Time went on. Jones discharged his committee duties promptly and as he did so he did all other congressional labors. Reed watched him and came to respect him, possibly to admire him for his resolute and dignified character. There came a vacancy on appropriations, and Reed commissioned a member to say that Jones could leave the place. Jones sent him word that his public service was known to the speaker, who could do as he saw fit in the matter. That settled Reed and he gave the place to another. Had Jones indicated the least part of submission then he would be chairman of appropriations now.

When the committee in insular affairs was created the republicans were resolved that it should be an important body, composed of the very aristocracy of the house. Cannon, Payne, Hitt, Hepburn, Lord, Moody and Tawney were on it—four chairmen of big committees, a future associate justice of the supreme court and a future chairman of appropriations. Jones was made head of the minority, though it contained Carmack of Tennessee, and Maddox of Georgia. He has been on the committee from its creation and is now its chairman.

This is the man who has the tenacity to offer combat to the Goliath of the machine. Mr. Carter Glass supports him, and as soon as I can gather some additional information I shall have something to say about Mr. Glass and the suppression of the freedom of the press in the state of Thomas Jefferson.

TO EXECUTE ITALIAN.

MONTREAL, May 25.—The first execution of an Italian in the history of this province is to take place in Montreal tomorrow. The condemned man is Francesco Grevello, convicted of the murder of a fellow countryman named Giuseppe Chino. The local Italian colony endeavored to have the death sentence commuted, but the efforts proved fruitless owing chiefly to the sentiment created here by the large number of crimes committed by Italians in the past few years.

OPPOSE RECIPROCITY.

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 25.—The Oklahoma Grain Dealers' association in session here adopted resolutions opposing the proposed Canadian reciprocity agreement.

Leopoldo Padilla, mineral agent, has been selected as postmaster, taking G. Machado's place, the latter being out of the city, and the former postmaster, V. V. Escalante, being afraid to return, although he has been requested to come back and again take charge of the post office. But he possibly fears that the insurgents will not protect him.

Monday Vice Governor Gayou and Gen. Jose Lomelin, together with their staffs, arrived in the city and were in conference with the chiefs the entire day. They returned to Naco yesterday afternoon.

During the past few days about 15 federalists who did not feel that they have been arrested and are at present confined in the court. There

VOTE ON PICTURE SHOWS.

FORT WORTH, Texas, May 25.—Probably for the first time in the United States the referendum was employed in Fort Worth today to determine whether the moving picture theaters shall be permitted to open on Sunday. The show managers applied for the privilege of giving Sunday performances and the petition met with a protest from the church organizations. The city commission thereupon ordered a special election to decide the matter.
